 Workplace Safety
& Prevention Services®

We learn from a team of leading safety experts:
Our Customers.

We Listen. We Lead.

By listening first – and listening closely, we acquire insights from our customers to ensure we understand their specific needs. We then deploy our deep knowledge of health and safety best practices to offer well-matched products and services, creating high value at an appropriate price.

The name has changed, the commitment has not.

When Workplace Safety & Prevention Services (WSPS) was formed in 2010, things changed. For the better. Our customers benefit from a new level of support from an organization with even greater resources and a broader understanding of Ontario's workplaces.

This has also resulted in WSPS being positioned as a more powerful advocate for worker safety in government policy development and corporate governance.

We don't develop solutions for our customers.

We develop them with our customers.

Leadership in Collaboration.

At any given time, WSPS staff are crossing the province and working with our customers – assessing, learning about new challenges and providing guidance in the form of products and services.

WSPS customers are supported by a team of health and safety specialists ready to serve – both in real time to specific needs; and over the longer term in the development of high quality products and innovative services.

A range of offerings that serve our communities. And bring them together.

WSPS has taken a leadership role in nurturing and growing health and safety in the business community through the Partners in Prevention conferences and trade shows. Attendees can choose from a menu of options including seminars to increase their product knowledge, insightful keynote speakers and thought-provoking workshops. And get up to speed on the latest products and services at the largest health and safety trade show in the country.
